

Individualization

You are intrigued with the unique qualities of each person and have a gift for figuring out how different people can work together productively. Your talent is valuable because it helps you form powerful relationships with people who know that they are taken seriously and seen as distinct individuals.

General Academic Life

Build on your curiosity about people by observing the different ways in which people learn and process information.

Read, read, read about people. Their uniqueness fascinates you.

Constantly observe those around you, seeing how your talents make you similar to each other, yet different.

Study various cultures. Their uniqueness will intrigue you.

Study Techniques

Establish a study group with people who possess a wide variety of talents and perspectives, thereby expanding your own horizons and viewpoints.

As you read a novel, take notes about how the author vividly sets up the uniqueness of each character.

Note how your style of learning, studying, writing papers, and taking tests compares to others. You will learn about some of the natural differences between people.

As you read about well known people, make a chart listing specific differences among them. This will hone your observation talents.

Individualization

Relationships

See the great talents in people, and encourage people to follow their own dreams. Help them understand and maximize the power of their talents.

Help your friends and classmates see and appreciate the and uniqueness in each other.

Create small support systems, using your Individualization talents to determine who might benefit from another's insights.

Class Selection

Enroll in classes about people, such as literature, sociology, and psychology.

Choose classes that promote discussion, bringing out varying beliefs from students.

Choose professors who allow students to make choices regarding their own learning.

Extracurricular Activities

Be a mentor. You will pinpoint people's unique qualities and encourage them to follow their own paths.

Seek peer-counseling opportunities that make use of your ability to know each person as an individual.

Keep a journal that includes specific observations about individual people. Write some feature articles about people on campus for the school newspaper.

