

Maximizer

You focus on strengths as a way to stimulate personal and group excellence. You seek to transform something strong into something superb. Your talent is valuable because it helps you focus on talents to stimulate personal and group excellence.

General Academic Life

Study success. Find out what made famous scientists, historic figures, and great innovators successful. The greatest outcome of college can be your insights into what makes people, societies, cultures, and groups successful.

Consider specialized programs that allow you to refine your talents.

Find mentors -- and be one.

Select a college or university that offers leadership opportunities in which you can maximize the talents of others.

Study Techniques

Read wherever you feel most comfortable -- the library, the coffee shop, or home.

Discover your best way to learn, and stick to it.

Determine ways to manage any weaknesses in your study habits.

Study the most of what you do the best.

Maximizer

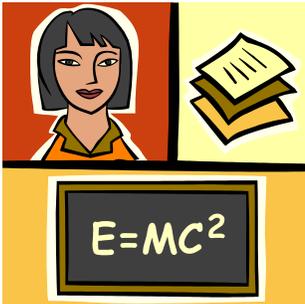

Relationships

Make a point of helping your friends use their greatest talents to the fullest.

Help your friends recognize the talents and strengths in others.

Associate with people who appreciate your talents as well as their own.

Meet regularly with mentors and role models for insight, advice, and inspiration.

Class Selection

Pick elective courses that will provide opportunities to develop new strengths and hone your existing strengths.

Choose your major on the basis of your greatest talents and your personal mission. In what area of study do you have the greatest potential for strengths?

Seek classes taught by professors whose teaching styles best match the way you learn.

Extracurricular Activities

Find an internship or a job in which you can apply your greatest talents and your existing strengths.

Involve yourself in mentoring or tutoring.

Join organizations that have missions related to development.

